"This event attracts a very diverse audience. We had multinationals, start-ups, SMEs, private practice lawyers, public policy professionals, even academics coming to this event - and it's an example of how innovation and IP are important subjects for so many different stakeholders." - Joe Doyle, IP Manager, Enterprise Ireland

Attendees can look forward to a variety of sessions, including panel discussions, interactive product demos, and networking opportunities. The first day will focus on Irish innovation, covering topics such as IP awareness, building brand identity, and the intersection of IP and investment.
